

Separation and divorce

Helping parents to help children

Each year in Britain around 100,000 children under 16 see their parents divorce. All too often they are the innocent casualties of family breakdown.

Parents and children who have access to good information and resources at an early stage are better equipped to manage the transition from being a family under one roof, to being a family in two separate homes.

Resolution has created this booklet to help you help your clients to focus on the needs of their children. It covers a range of topics about the separation process, as well as information on how children are affected and can be helped.
